08.45-09.00	IFSEA Chair and Conference Sponsor Welcome
09.00-10.00	Opening Plenary Session Great Hall
	Ethical handling of Executive Investigations: Are sloppy investigations, or overzealous investigations under ‘zero tolerance’ policies, potentially ruining careers of good professionals and executives, or are they regarded as the inevitable price of ensuring justice for victims overall? Is dismissal now effectively the default outcome for executives? What are the ethical implications of investigations and what does best practice look like? Carol Davis KC, Littleton Chambers, UK Meriel Schindler, Withers, UK Kristen Prinz, The Prinz Law Firm, Chicago, USA Claire Cross, Corker Binning, UK Co-chairs: Lindsey Wagner, Moxie Mediation &amp; Workplace Investigations, California, USA &amp; Beth Hale CM Murray UK
10.00-11.00	Plenary Session Great Hall
	Turning up the heat to stamp out harassment: A recent high-profile court decision in Delaware has allowed shareholders to sue the former Global Chief People Officer of McDonalds for alleged breach of his fiduciary duties, in allegedly failing to attempt to prevent systemic sexual harassment at the company. In the UK draft legislation is being considered to introduce a mandatory duty on employers to eradicate sexual harassment and also introducing liability for third party harassment. What will be the likely impact of these and other developments and what more should executives be doing to ensure effective oversight of their organisations and to protect their people against harassment?

	Colleen Cleary, CC Solicitors, Ireland  Cathleen Scott, Scott Law Team LLC, Florida, USA  Andrew Pavlovic, CM Murray LLP, UK  Carl-Fredrik Hedenström, CFH Law Firm, Sweden  Cathy Qu, River Delta Law Firm, Shanghai, PRC Chair: Sarah Chilton, CM Murray LLP, UK
	Breakout Session 1 Great Hall	Breakout Session 2 Livery Room
11.00-11.30	Board Pay: Heightened scrutiny of CEO and executive compensation: Investors on both sides of the Atlantic are looking hard at the rise in CEO and executive compensation, with a more focused lens on whether compensation increases are matched to meeting ESG and other targets. What impact will the PRA and FCA consultation on proposed removal of existing limits on bonus cap in the financial services sector have on CEO and executive compensation?	How Executives get the best out of their teams against a backdrop of changing employee cultural and generational behaviours, expectations and the new “quiet constraint”.
	Teresa L. Johnson, Arnold &amp; Porter, California, USA  Dr. Johannes Traut, Seitz, Germany Chair: Emma Bartlett, CM Murray LLP, UK	Joydeep Hor, People + Culture Strategies, Australia  Louise O'Connor, CM Murray LLP, UK
11.30-11.45	Coffee Break Livery Room
	Breakout Session 3 Great Hall	Breakout Session 4 Livery Room
11.45-12.30	Engaging constructively with the activist workforce: How do we help business leaders to engage, understand and collaborate constructively with unions, works councils and activist employee, especially in a TikTok world, for the best outcomes for business, the workforce and the public opinion? The strategies and the pitfalls.	Understanding executive equity valuations and handling repurchase/clawback disputes: Repurchase rights can often be lurking in the fine print of equity grants and can leave executives vulnerable to forfeiture of their equity at diminished valuations, especially on termination. Different valuation methods yield a range of results, and it is important for an executive to know what to ask for upfront, to avoid surprises down the road and also to understand 'Cause' and 'Good Reason' and good leaver/bad leaver clauses in employment agreements, Shareholder/LTIP agreements, Phantom shares and stock options

	Georgina Calvert-Lee, Bellevue Law, UK Pål Kvernaas, Haavind AS, Norway Carlos Pareja Frade, Augusta, Spain Chair: Danny J. 	Breakout Session 5 Great Hall	Breakout Session 6 Livery Room
12.30-13.15	The Executive Whistleblower – the rights, protections and opportunities for executive blowing the whistle on organisational wrongdoing: Are they ever enough to compensate for the risks, reputational, health and even family consequences of blowing the whistle? What more can executives do now and in the future to protect themselves and also others in their organisation who want to speak out against corporate wrongdoing?	Founders behaving badly – strategic and diplomatic board games. This panel will discuss the options available to the board in common scenarios, when seeking to remove a rogue or dysfunctional founder or executive, who is also a director and shareholder. They will focus on the non-statutory employment law rights of the founder and the risks to which the board are exposed, in relation to perceived unfair treatment.

	Closing Plenary Session  Great Hall
16.45–17.45	The Plague of the Narcissistic Leader: What is the Damage? Is there a Cure?  An interactive audience discussion in a Samoan Circle format.  What traits do we look for in our corporate leaders? Ask someone what distinguishes a forceful leader in business, and they're likely to mention self-confidence, charisma, strong-will and boldness. But, frequently, such traits may also exist side-by-side with far less palatable ones. The role that a CEO's personality plays in determining outcomes, including stock-price performance, is a topic of considerable interest to researchers, the media, and the public. Leveraging the research and expertise of organizational psychology and engaging the audience's views too, this session will examine the damage narcissistic leaders can inflict on corporations in terms of strategic choices, governance quality, ESG, ethical standards, and executive turnover, and explore the potential solutions to it.
