Some often find themselves in a dark place and see no way out. What are the best strategies to protect executives in distress and how do we ensure that those on the front line of business crises are properly supported to avoid cataclysmic consequences? Lori Deem, Hughes Socol Piers Resnick & Dym, Ltd., USA (Chicago) Dr Philip Hopley, Cognacity, UK Joydeep Hor, People + Culture Strategies, Australia (Chair) Howard Hymanson, Harbottle and Lewis, UK
09.15-09.30	IFSEA Chair and Innangard, Conference Sponsor, Welcome

	Plenary Session Great Hall
09.30 -10.30	Strategies For Investigating And Defending Allegations Of Executive Wrongdoing: At the heart of any investigation is the desire to understand the truth and the need to avoid bias, evidence tampering or otherwise hampering of an investigation, as well as completing an investigation efficiently. These objectives often need to work in parallel with legal, regulatory and criminal matters and, for the executive and organisation alike, to be sensitive to considerable reputational issues at play. Our distinguished panel, variously experienced in high profile US, UK, and French employment, regulatory and criminal investigations, will provide valuable strategies for investigating and strategies for defending allegations of executive wrongdoing. Emma Bartlett, CM Murray LLP, UK (Chair) Lawrence Gresser, Cohen & Gresser, USA (New York) Camille A. Olson, Seyfarth Shaw LLP, USA (Chicago) Ellen Peart, BCL Solicitors, UK Mohinderpal Sethi KC, Littleton, UK Mathilde Houet Weil, Weil & Associés, France
	Breakout Session 1 Great Hall	Breakout Session 2 Livery Room
10.30-11.15	Women, Compensation And Negotiation: Studies have revealed that women negotiate more successfully than men when representing others in employment and severance negotiations but not for themselves. The reason is often attributed to the gendered expectation of communal behaviour. Is it that women don't ask for what they deserve? — (as was the theory two decades ago) or is it that women are punished when they do ask—or ask aggressively? And, even if they do negotiate hard, are they still denied gender pay equity for other reasons as the current wage gap data suggests? This panel will address this complex topic and its effect on compensation. Wendi Lazar, C-Suite Strategies, LLC, USA (New York) (Chair) Nicola Rabson, Linklaters, UK Wendy Walton, Executive & Leadership Coach, UK	Not Your Client's Mouthpiece: The ethical conflicts for advisers between passionately representing their client's interests and maintaining professional objectivity, personal integrity and obligations to the Court, particularly when your client is a strong-minded business leader or powerful organisation, with their own forceful agenda. How do lawyers maintain their independence and objectivity, and avoid becoming collateral damage? Joanna Chatterton, Fox Williams, UK Atul Gupta, Trilegal, India (Chair) Carl-Fredrik Hedenström, CFH Law, Sweden Megan Lopp Mathias, Hinshaw & Culbertson, USA Niya Phiri, Clyde & Co LLP, UK

15.25-15.55	Whistleblowing Update: Everything you need to know about the latest key developments in 30 minutes! What works best for whistleblowing, the carrot or the stick? Traditionally Europe prioritised the anti-retaliatory model, whilst the US operates very generous incentive systems by an increasing number of regulators. Are financial rewards to whistleblowers the best way forward? And what new developments are looming in the horizon following the EU whistleblowing directive? In the UK, following various scandals and the government's review of the legal framework, where are we now, and what improvements are needed?	The FTC Ban on Non-Competes: Questions for the Morning After? A Fireside Discussion between US and UK advisers The FTC has banned non-competition clauses in most US employment contracts, affecting millions of workers. The ban aims to boost labour mobility, innovation, and competition, but it raises new questions and challenges for employers and employees. To whom does the ban apply? How will it impact current and future contracts, severance deals, and lawsuits? How will the rule relate to existing state laws and court rulings on non-competes? How will employers now seek to protect their confidential information? How will it affect employers and executives in the UK and elsewhere in the world with US operations and US employment and equity arrangements?
